The Price Of Liberty

Thoughtful people in British Columbia—and, indeed, in many parts of Canada — have been stunned by the astonishing piece of legislation introduced by Premier Bennett at the weekend.

What the Premier has done is to bring down amendment to his original Power Act, at a time then that legislation is being tested in the courts, which would fix a final price for the B.C. Electric and deny to shareholders any redress by way of court action "past," present or future."

It seems obvious that the Premier, having lost the preliminary steps instituted by the B.C. Power Corporation to have a fair price established in court, moved quickly to choke off the due processes of law. In the phrase of one shareholder, he "changed the goal-posts in the middle of the game"

He has, in effect, set his own rules and in so doing, seeks to use the legislature to frustrate the courts. As a piece of high-handed and dictatorial lawmaking, it is breath-taking in its audacity and at the same time a matter of the gravest concern to our whole society.

It is also an admission of serious error in the original legislation, Mr. Bennett today offers $60 millions for assets which the Power Corporation itself assesses at $11 millions. Hence the clear implication that his original pay-out of $111 millions was inadequate, and that the added $60 millions may only be regarded as an inducement to share-holders to compensate for the loss of their court

But these rights must not easily be foresworn. As Power Corporation president Robertson wisely

"People who value their liberties should not submit lightly to plunder. If a corporation representing several millions submits, how can the individual survive?"

This is the nub of the whole issue. If Mr. Bennett's cause is just, he has nothing to fear from the courts, which are the last defence of the in-

If the private citizen is denied his day in court, then he has lost everything.

Mr. Bennett has gone too far. This bill should be withdrawn.

And, if the Premier wants to force this into an election issue, the voters should understand what is at stake: it is not a matter of dollars for shareholders of the electric company. This is in-

The issue is the fundamental right of a citizen to a fair trial and impartial assessment of his appeal.

Any man who would deny him that right does not belong in a democratic Canadian society.

Opposition forces in the legislature should be preparing now to take the issue to the people, so that an informed and awakened electorate may move resolutely to protect their liberties.

MONTREAL—Montreal isn't really the Paris of North America or the second French city of the world, Lucien Bergeron, director of Montreal's tourist office, said Monday night. It's all a publicity stunt.

"If we told the true story—that Montreal is a cos-mopolitan city with French quarters, English/quarters, Italian quarters, and so on—tourists just wouldn't come

"After all, publicity and reality are two different things," he said in an address to Mont St. Louise College

In a later question period, Mr. Bergeron had critical words for some of Montreal's most cherished institutions.

The St. Jean Baptiste Day parade: "It should be changed. Floats with Indians in bare feet—and mickeys

Diplomatic But Plain

DIPLOMAT OF EXPERIENCE A and ability, U.S. Ambassador Livingston T. Merchant knows the limits of comment permissible for one in his position. But a diplomat's essage can be understood if he is listened to carefully, and those who heard Mr. Merchant's address to the men's and women's Canadian clubs here last week could not fall to have noted a few phrases delivered near the close of his talk.

The visitor had been discussing the new and exciting policy of freer trade which President Kennedy has sent to Congress for approval. It "constitutes an historic and bold initiative to expand free world trade." Mr. Merchant rightly observed.

Then he added the significant words: "I do not see, however, that it can be expected fully to succeed unless all trading countries in the free world-who would be the beneficiaries of tariff reductions on our part—are willing to play a whole-hearted part in multilateral negotiations designed to exchange meaningful tariff concessions on a broad range of items."

He said this aspect no doubt was being "carefully pondered" by the Canadian government. As a mem-ber of the Commonwealth and an important world trading nation, "Canada, too, must independently assess the nature and the force of the present economic challenge and determine its own response

There can be no question of what Mr. Merchant and President Kennedy hope that response will be. It has been made plain more than once. There can be little question as to what most Canadians hope the response will be, either, for they have seen the meteoric rise of Euro-pean trade during the past few years under the common market system of diminishing tariffs; they have seen the United States preparing to undertake sensational tariff cuts on a reciprocal basis to open up the mutually beneficial trade of the free world; and they have seen the Canadian government hesitating, fumbling, talking at cross purposes and suicidally raising taciffs in the midst of this great tariff-lowering

Mr. Merchant's comment takes sharper point from the fact that only a moment before he had observed that statistics on industrial tariffs show the United States to be among the lowest-tariff countries with an average of 11 per cent. West Germany, Sweden, Switzer-land and Denmark are lower, he said, but "Canada, similarly calcu-ated is among the highest tariff countries at 16 per cent, being ex-ceeded only by New Zealand, the United Kingdom, Austria and

Sir Mike to the Rescue

FROM HIS BED OF PAIN, AL-derman Michael Griffin has raised a faltering voice in behalf of progress. It was a brave act.

What Ald. Griffin proposes is that people who wish to spend $350,000 to create a medieval "Playland" on 11 acres in the Gorge area should be given permission to go ahead. But, says Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, this is civic property and should not be tied up by lease to a private company.

The implication is that citizens are now using this wooded acreage. The fact is that they are not. A visit to the area any weekend would a few stragglers, picking their way through a dense tangle of blow-down, undergrowth and neg- Nothing Radical lected pathways.

What protagonists of the plan propose is to convert this deserted forest into an enchanted forest, complete with all the things youngsters love—a moat and castle, a dungeon, a deer park, a donkeytrail, a barbecue, and a Viking ship to transport them up and down the waterway.

In this civic joust Alderman

But, the minister pointed out, because material may be written and printed in Canada it is not necessarily the best for Canadian school students.

There are several reasons why is the case. In many fields of activity Canadians are not leading authorities. Nor are all books by Canadians up to the standard of some books by non-Canadians. Very should be assumed, also that cators would take care to select materials most suited for Canadian consumption.

We have, however, some distance to go to approach the ideal and we should realize that our students could be short-changed if chauvinism forced upon them inferior study material just because don, at least for a decade or so, the care to select produce more.

He is understandably not prepared to "set the peasants free" because it would mean the end of the system. But for a time it did look as though he was ready to give them more say in the running of the collectives and a bigger share of the fruits.

The next logical step was to abantary the standary of the collectives and a bigger share of the fruits.

Nobody expects the Soviet Union to qual more temperate lands in yield

MR. LESLIE PETERSON, MINister of education, has made a valid point in the course of explaining the origin of textbooks used in British Columbia schools.

About 50 per cent of them are written and printed in Canada, he said in a discussion of opposition demands for more Canadian textbooks in this province's classrooms. Moreover an increasing number of Canadian texts is being used.

Moreover in some subjects a more objective picture can be obtained by students from non-Canadian books than from those too biased in this country's favor.

The ideal, of course, is to encourage production of Canadian text books in this province's classrooms. Moreover an increasing number of Canadian texts is being used.

It was not one would have said, a likely text for a revivalist meeting, but Mr. Khrushchev made it just that. Here is an example of the mood. The Central Committee consists of the hardest-headed Commu-nists in the land. But listen to the veteran scientist, Pisarev, speaking:

"When I was listening to the brilliant report of Nikita Sergeyevich Khrush chev I remembered the splendid book by John Reed, Ten Days That Shook the World. I thought that the 5th of March this year was not just a simple date in the calendar, but a day when the tyranny of ley-farming was overthrown, a day when our country was freed from the burden of the inheritance of the personality cult. personality cult . .

Ley-farming was certainly pushed to ridiculous extremes in Soviet Russia. By demanding its total abandonment and substituting intensive intercropping with fodder crops. Mr. Khrushchev's new regional management committees for agriculture, to be run not by practical agriculturalists, but by the local party functionaries, subordinated to a central apparatus with apparently autocratic power, are an other product of the same mood.

Mr. Khrushchev argued the case for these committees at immense length and in self-justifying manner foreign to his temperament. But almost all he said was an admission of defeat.

Not Clear

What is not clear is the extent to which Mr. Khrushchev is his own master in this matter, or in his explicit reversal of his earlier idea that the Soviet Union is now strong enough to divert resources from heavy industry to the rational building up of agriculture.

It does not seem to matter either way. The Central Committee Plenum

NOT many are left of those who, in Not many are left of those who, in 1925, signed the act of union that brought the United Church of Canada into being. Among that select company, the most illustrious is the Very Rev. George Campbell Pidgeon, DD, LLD, who celebrated his 90th birthday on March 2 As scholar, writer prescher. on March 2. His extraordinary gift of prayer re-flected the complete dedication of this man to this cause. His vision of the Church and its future in Canada made him our greatest church statesman. It was altogether right that Dr. George Pidgeon should become the first Mod-erator of the United Church of Canada.

Born on the southern shore of the Gaspe, he graduated from McGill and from the Montreal Presbyterian College and was ordained in 1894. His active ministry spanned 54 years.

In the course of that time, he was Professor of Practical Theology at Westminster Hall in British Columbia for six years, and minister of congre-gations in Montreal West, Streetsville and Toronto. Because of his life-long concern for the ecumenical movement, he was chosen to attend the great Life and Work Conference at Oxford in 1937, and. later was elected president for North America of the World Presby-

Still keen of mind at 90, though handicapped by failing eyesight, Dr. Pidgeon has outlived all but six of his modatorial successors.

OTTAWA—Two months have now passed in this parliamentary session that Prime Minister Diefenbaker predicted last fall would be "short and sweet." For the Con-servatives it has been received. servatives it has been neither short nor

Barring a late spring or early summer election — which, of course, nobody in his right mind will do — the session promises to be just as long and much more acrimonious than other sessions in recent years.

Activity in and around the firence department indicates the minister will bring down his budget just before an April 18 adjournment for the Easter recess. That will be the critical period for the life of this Par-liament. Either the PM will "go" then, with a goodie-packed budget on the record for implementation when the Conservatives are returned, or he will suffer the session to run its normal time, and forego an election before

But here again one must insert a proviso barring the emergence of a first-class issue that the PM judges should be played for a snap election regardless of the season of

Two months of political infighting and election uncertainty are starting to fray MPs' nerves. One day in the Commons last week MPs were shouting such pleasantries across the Cramber as all nown.

"You can't call me a liar!" he cried, face livid. "I'll give you a face full of rubbers," he said, raising his rubbers as if to push them into the offending face.

Fortunately, as they used to say in books, ler heads prevailed

It has not so far been a happy session for the government. There have been the nu-clear arms flasco, the logy economy, the several embarrassments created by the PM's Quebec ministers and his former minister,

Henri Courtemanche, the illness of the man counted on to pull the farm vote, Alvin Hamilton, the criticism of the government's position on the Common Market, the bad news of the opinion polls and byelection results, and mortification over the way the Indian timber deal went sour. While in toto these events suggest an ction rather later than sooner, it is not possible for an outside observer to assess with much accuracy how important each may be on the government's election plans and prospects. For instance, the allegation of skulduggery leveled by the opposition of skulduggery leveled by the opposition over the government's rejection of the ostensibly higher bid for the Tsimpsean Indian Reserve 'imber in British Columbia is bad enough. But the linking of the name Ladner with the charges—Leon Ladner went identified as the Tories' chief campaign fund collector in B.C.—may hurt the government more than the irregularities alleged against the Indian Affairs administration. the Indian Affairs administration.

For the PM, the session has been more sour than sweet. Come Easter he could well decide he's had enough, and pull the plug on the 24th Parliament.

February Figure Up From January Representing 9.1 of Labor Force

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment in Canada rose to 583,000 at mid-February, 136,000 lower than the postwar jobless peak a year earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The February jobless total, 38,000 higher than in January, represented 9.1 per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.3 per cent in January and 11.3 per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.3 per cent in February last year.

The bureau said the changes in employment and unemployment between January and February were "about in line with season patterns."

The monthly report said the labor force has shown little change since mid - 1961 apart from seasonal movements, in contrast to its steady and rapid growth over the last decade.

LABOR FORCE CLIMBS

In February, the estimated labor force was 60,000 higher than a year earlier. This is an increase of about one per cent. However, employment was up 196,000-or 3.5 per cent over the year, one of the largest margins in the last five years. Main declines in employment between January and February were in trade, construction, forestry and mining. The report said employment was "fairly well maintained" between January and February were in trade, construction, for-estry and mining.

The report said employment was "fairly well maintained" in all regions during the month and continued higher than a year earlier. Year-to-year gains varied from just under two per cent in Ontario to a little better than six per cent in the Pacific

About two-thirds of the jump in unemployment over the month was in the Quebec region, where many workers were released as a result of a sea-sonal decline in pulp - cutting operations. The Ontario and Atlantic regions also experienced incre'a ses in unemployment while there was little change in the west.

The report said about 44,000 of the 583,000 jobless workers were on temporary layoff. Another 89,000 had been released from their jobs since January, while 260,000 had been unerr ployed for one to three months

GIVES AGE BREAKDOWN

An estimated 116,000 had been without jobs for four to six while 74,000 had been in the jobless ranks for seven

When the field of eight finished their chores at Gibson's Pederson was still ahead with 1,924. Fourth and sinking fast was Magwood. He was 96 pins behind Pederson. In five games his best score was 171—respectable for a paying matron but hardly representative of a champion.

Thompson, the veteran of the trio, worked hard at staying close to the strike pocket and out of trouble.

Magwood is not a classic bowler in the accepted sense.

Long striding, he throws the ball "out into right field." Just when it appears that it will never break in, it seems to dart for the head pin. When he finishes his delivery his left arm is right at his side instead of being pushed out as a balance lever.

After the first two games, Pederson still had the situation in hand. He rolled 180 and 223. Magwood had 175 and 213, was now 109 pins off the lead.

Occasionally the tension would be broken by Leo Frittzer of Prince George or Victoria's Roy Regg. Fritzler would make a face at the pins and then shake up the audience with a "to-hell-with-it" laugh.

Begg was all over the place. Once when he fired a rare double and the crowd came alive, he took off his glasses and waved them in a "we-hit-them-again, Ma;" fashion.

As they started the third game, Magwood lit his 1,314th cigarette and started to throw his bender where it would do the most good. He ran off a five-timer, finished with 231.

As Wilf Smith chalked up the scores, Magwood glanged nervously at the board. When he saw that Pederson had a pairry 150, he said, "Wow!" Now the pressure cooker was boiling.

"I need two more big ones," Magwood said. "Two more and I might eatch him.

The Miles Home . . . Endless, Silent

The results are history. Magwood found two more big ones. Pederson didn't. It was somewhat significant in those two final games that Pederson's attention kept stray-ing to Magwood. The latter, keyed up like a violin string, never once slashed his own concentration by letting his gaze stray.

Part-Time Pilots Boost Rates?

Insurance rates are jumping because highways department employees are flying depart-ment aircraft themselves, Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane charged Monday night.

"I am advised this is the situation." he said. "If so this is a dangerous practice. These men are only part-time fliers are not fully-trained pilots." Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi explained that two of his men fly Anson aircraft, and they are fully insured. He didn't say how high the rates were compared with other pilots.

Mr. Gaglardi said he had ought four Expediter aircraft for the government for $4,000 each—half the cost of their engines alone. Two were being used for lands and forests epartment surveys, one by the highways department and the fourth "has not been touched"

The request came in the legislature Monday from Arthur Turner (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East).

Names such as City of Victoria and City of Vancouver were "too common," he said.

Tsawwassen was a good anne, but the only Indian anne.

Mr. Gaglardi said this was "fremendously good thinking."
But he added: "There is a feeling abroad that Canada, and particularly R.C., is nothing but wild natives."

If Instan names were used, the feeling might be that if you came to B.C. "you might get scalped."

Vancouver based Grosvenor Laing Company months ago began negotiations to develop a huge shopping centre-almost rivalling the downtown on the site to include a new partment store. Planned Blanshard Street extension would border eastern boundary of the property, Evans, Coleman has renewed its option on vacant Crowe-Gonnasson property. Company officials say no firm decision has been made yet to move the Douglas Street operation to the C-G site on Rock Bay but city council has agreed to several requests facilitating such a move. Even on the sedate Dallas Road waterfront there was a swinging-door saloon, and this is remembered (but not as a customer) by Major Eric Henderson of 815 Linden Avenue.

"I was then a small boy in a sailor suit," he says, "but I used to see the sailors weaving in and out of the old Dallas Hotel. Victoria was a big seaport then. It was crowded with seafarers from all over the world and the pubs thrived on them. "So did the variety theatres . . . Victoria was a lively place in those days."

Kristian Idsoe, who came to Victoria seven years ago from Stavanger, Norway, has a really impressive family tree acquired from relatives at home.

It traces his ancestry clear back to 1160 when the line of descent was established by Gaute from Enaes, a minister at the court of King Magnus at Erlingsons.

Mr. Idsoe, an auto electrician, now lives with his wife

AN EDITORIAL

The Price . . . . . Is Too High

Thoughtful people in British Columbia—and, indeed, in many parts of Canada — have been stunned by the astonishing piece of legislation introduced by Premier Bennett at the weekend.

What the Premier has done is to bring down an amendment to his original Power Act, at a time when that legislation is being tested in the courts, which would fix a final price for the B.C. Electric and deny to shareholders any redress by way of court action "past, present or future."

It seems obvious that the Premier, having lost the preliminary steps instituted by the B.C. Power Corporation to have a fair price established in court, moved quickly to choke off the due processes of law. In the phrase of one shareholder, he "changed the goal-posts in the middle of the game."

He has, in effect, set his own rules and in so doing, seeks to use the legislature to frustrate the courts. As a piece of high-handed and dictatorial lawmaking, it is breath-taking in its audacity and at the same time a matter of the gravest concern to our whole scales. to our whole society.

* It is also an admission of serious error in the original legislation. Mr. Bennett today offers $60 millions for assets which the Power Corporation itself assesses at $11 millions. Hence the clear implication that his original pay-out of $111 millions was inadequate, and that the added $60 millions may only be regarded as an inducement to share-holders to compensate for the legal that the second that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the second that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the second that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the same holders to compensate for the legal that the same holders holders to compensate for the loss of their court

"People who value their liberties should not submit lightly to plunder. If a corporation representing several millions submits, how can the individual survive?"

If the private citizen is denied his day in court, then he has lost everything.

Mr. Bennett has gone too far. This bill should be withdrawn

And, if the Premier wants to force this into an election issue, the voters should understand what is at stake: it is not a matter of dollars for shareholders of the electric company. This is incidental.

The issue is the fundamental right of a citizen to a fair trial and impartial assessment of his ap-

Any man who would deny him that right does not belong in a democratic Canadian society.

Opposition forces in the legislature should be preparing now to take the issue to the people, so that an informed and awakened electorate may move resolutely to protect their liberties.

. HERE AND THERE

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

When he isn't driving visitors around the city, George (Rebel) Mowat likes to show them souvenirs of Old Victoria.

His latest—a faded typewritten list of 109 pubs and hotels which flourished here before the First World War.

I wonder who remembers the Bee Hive on Fort Street,

Even on the sedate Dallas Road waterfront there was a swinging-door saloon, and this is remembered (but not as a customer) by Major Eric Henderson of 815 Linden Avenue.

"I was then a small boy in a sallor suit," he says, "but I used to see the sailors weaving in and out of the old Dallas Hotel. Victoria was a big seaport then. It was crowded with seafarers from all over the world and the pubs thrived on them.

AN EDITORIAL

The Price Of Liberty

Thoughtful people in British Columbia-and, indeed, in many parts of Canada — have been stunned by the astonishing piece of legislation introduced by Premier Bennett at the weekend.

What the Premier has done is to bring down an amendment to his original Power Act, at a time when that legislation is being tested in the courts, which would fix a final price for the B.C. Electric and deny to shareholders any redress by way of court action "past, present or future."

It seems obvious that the Premier, having lost the preliminary steps instituted by the B.C. Power Corporation to have a fair price established in court, moved quickly to choke off the due processes of law. In the phrase of one shareholder, he "changed the goal-posts in the middle of the game."

He has, in effect, set his own rules and in so doing, seeks to use the legislature to frustrate the courts. As a piece of high-handed and dictatorial lawmaking, it is breath-taking in its audacity and at the same time a matter of the gravest concern to our whole society.

It is also an admission of serious error in the original legislation. Mr. Bennett today offers $60 millions for assets which the Power Corporation itself assesses at $11 millions. Hence the clear implication that his original pay-out of $111 millions was inadequate, and that the added $60 millions may only be regarded as an inducement to share-holders to corporate for the content of the property of the content of the conte holders to compensate for the loss of their court

"People who value their fiberties should not submit lightly to plunder. If a corporation representing several millions submits, how can the individual survive?"

> * *

This is the nub of the whole issue. If Mr. Bennett's cause is just, he has nothing to fear from the courts, which are the last defence of the individual.

If the private citizen is denied his day in court, then he has lost everything.

Mr. Bennett has gone too far. This bill should be withdrawn.

And, if the Premier wants to force this into an election issue, the voters should understand what is at stake: it is not a matter of dollars for shareholders of the electric company. This is in-

New Move Beyond Politics

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault said today Premier Bennett's changes in the B.C. Electric takeover goes beyond the realm of politics, and he appealed for a mass protest by people in all walks of life.

Mr. Perrault issued a statement on the changes, which would prohibit any court action on compensation terms of the takeover.

"This unprecedented action This unprecedented action by a desperate premier and his government to strike down the fundamental right of access to the courts now raises an issue of such magnitude that it transcends party politics," he said.

VITAL ISSUE

No issue in B.C. is of such critical importance as the new legislation on the takeover, said Mr. Perrault.

"At stake is the integrity and survival of our system of parliament and our judicial institutions.

premier to say I'm only strip-ping a few shareholders of their rights and no one else is threatened. History is strewn with the wrecks of free socie-ties which failed to stand firm at the first sign of dictator

Mr. Perrault said the premier has rendered a verdict against the courts and the law. "He has proclaimed, I am the law'.

BY VOICE VOTE

Mr. Perrault added: "Surely this is the time for all citizens and organizations, whether they be business, labor, the church, professors, teachers, professional people especially those in the bar associationand individuals in all walks of life to speak out against this

Mr. Perrault said the protest must not be left "to a few elected opposition members in the legislature and the editorial writers."

"It is time for all citizens, especially those who have hitherto remained silent in the face of the growing arrogance of the premier to speak up with a loud clear voice.
